For Youth and Young-minded* Adults - An Explanation of the Ten Commandments and A Memory System using Bible Numerics; c.440pp., 6.25 x 9.25, pb., 25.00 + P&H; not on child's level [* young minded, refers to opposite of "you can't teach an old dog a new trick"; Christ taught if one wanted to see/enter Kingdom he had to become as little child, that is child-like faith / obedience.] My exposition shows 10 Commandments not 10 individual laws, but 10 Categories of Law under which entire Law of God is organized. I show how other laws are so categorized and how breaking any one is tantamount to breaking all; and that all 10 categories if violated are sins against God and all 10 categories if violated are sins against our kinsmen. Very detailed, enlightening, instructional; profound new thought and clear teaching that will be hard for antinomians to refute, if they will read. Also a detailed exposition of Matthew 5:38-40 concerning loving our "enemies", "turning the other cheek", "giving thy coat and cloak", etc. These were not general, broad-based, universal statements, but only referred to accepting just punishment in court if one had truly sinned and damaged a kinsman and thus to accept the punishment gracefully, showing your true remorse for having damaged a brother; and "going the extra mile" likewise had specific (not universal) application; but modern "Christianity" has perverted this Sermon on the Mount teaching to mean we should just bend over and accept abuse and lie down and die. Christ taught Occupy till I come (not surrender or blend in with the world), and Paul wrote, have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but REBUKE them... this is not consonant with "turning the other cheek" to GOD'S enemies, the enemies of Christendom: immoral people, aliens, perverts, criminals, antichrists, etc., which is not what Christ was teaching.]

- Thinking Black: 22 Years Without a Break in the Long Grass of Central Africa (1913) [reprinted by Negro Universities Press, NY, in 1969] Daniel Crawford (1870-1926) a.k.a. "Konga Vantu", Scottish missionary of Plymouth Brethren in central-southern Africa, I find it very interesting, intriguing, enlightening, thought-provoking, entertaining, humorous, profound... to me, it has an odd tone of thought; if I can put my finger on it, I believe it seems as if he merely describes things and does not explain them; there is no explaining random chaos, there is only describing it... that is all he can do with topic at hand... a missionary, but with honest insight into the blank mind of those primitives he was around... the book seems to begin with no purpose, no explanation, you just awake and find yourself in his safari trekking through the hot and humid bush... with his unique manners of description and humor and blunt insight. In the beginning he mentions the Portuguese he encountered in Mozambique at the first area from which he embarked and noted how indolent the Portuguese were: expressed it was believed they would not drink coffee for breakfast under assumption it might keep them up the rest of the day. 504pp. + 20pp. photos, pb., 28.00 + P&H. sequel: Back to the Long Grass (see); 50.00 + P&H for set.

(6 books in series; inquire); this one covers wars against British & Indians, centered around Simon Kenton; greatest frontiersman/pioneer greater than Daniel Boone (saved Boone's life few times) great man, God watched over him even as Washington in battle; incredible man; a true legend: 1 of only 2 men who could fire, reload, fire musket while running. I highly recommend this book. One of best I have ever read. One of only men in history to have survived any (let alone numerous times the) running of Indian gauntlet; British/French treachery, frontier-life, Indian Wars, American independence; 626pp., 9x10 pb., 19⁰⁰; Hb. 35.00 + P&H; incredible! Penna; family enjoyed peaceful relationship w/ Indians but at outbreak of French & Indian Wars, relationship broke down about land known as Minisink; Quick's father killed & scalped; Quick began long, vengeful campaign to kill as many Indians as he could; he killed nearly 100, eventually died of old age. When written, he was one of great icons of Amer. folklore & exploits commonly known; today, virtually forgotten; political correctness caused hometown of Milford, PA to dismantle monument over his remains & replace it with apologetic plaque!
