here is an excerpt

All defendants began to take new hope. Dr. Harvey H. Springer, pastor of the largest Baptist church in the state of Colorado, says: "I was at that time chairman of a committee of preachers and laymen, operating on a nation-wide scale in Dr. Winrod's behalf. We felt sure that he was being mistreated by reds inside the government who wanted to browbeat into silence, every man of God who might dare to lift a voice against Communism. Walter Winchell had screamed into the microphone a short time earlier that I would be indicted for supporting Dr. Winrod but after Senator Taft spoke out, we heard no more such threats. Our committee continued with its work and finally circulated a total of more than two hundred thousand pieces of literature. We knew that the Communists had a long list of other religious leaders who were marked men. They were going strong in the Rocky Mountain area in those days, even to the point of starting riots in church services in some instances."

Attorney Henry Klein removed himself from the case a few months into the trial after receiving a number of death threats from fellow Jews. Other attorneys saw their legal practice begin to fade away.

During the trial and its aftermath the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU)--which at the time was essentially a Communist front organization--did nothing to aid the defendants. Ironically, one of the defendants, Ellis Jones, was an Executive Committee member of the southern California chapter of the ACLU.

DESCRIPTION

If we are to believe conventional history books, the Southern Cause died on April 9, 1865, with Lee's surrender at Appomattox. As with most mainstream history, however, this belief is not only false, the opposite is true: The Southern Cause is flourishing today like never before! How can this be if the North won the war over a century and a half ago? Just what was and is the Southern Cause? And why were millions of people of all races willing to sacrifice their lives for it? You will find the answer to these questions, as well as discussions on closely associated topics (e.g., the Constitution, nullification, sectionalism, slavery, etc.) in historian Lochlainn Seabrook's one-of-a-kind volume I, Confederate. In this revealing and important work, the award-winning author provides excerpts from the writings, speeches, letters, and poems of some 200 Southerners (mostly former C.S. soldiers), who describe, in their own words, why they seceded from the U.S. and took up arms against their American cousins to the North. For added context Seabrook also includes pertinent writings from Southern women, Southern civilians, Northern civilians, and even several Union veterans, who also supported the momentous campaign that Southerners appropriately referred to as “the bedrock of the Southern Confederacy.” Get the facts about the Southern Cause from the only truly reliable source, Confederate veterans—the men who created it and risked their lives for it—in this historically accurate work that preserves an essential and much neglected aspect of genuine American history. Illustrated with rare Confederate photos from the 1860s, I, Confederate includes a preface, introduction, notes, index, and bibliography, and is available in paperback and hardcover. Crime and Punishment:

Judgment isn't pretty — either is crime.

Africans and American Indians tortured, roasted and then ate their victims, innocent or guilty.

White people were lynched too.

The death penalty prevents crime.

Cities used to be safe even at night.

No one was lynched for spitting on the sidewalk or littering but almost exclusively for the crimes of rape or murder.

Was every single lynching "just" ...?

Are all court trials today "just" ...?

Who stirs up emotional outrage today for the victims of the crimes for which the perpetrator was lynched...?

Hero Tales from History

Smith Burnham, M.A.,
Head of the Department of History, Western State Normal School, Kalamazoo, Michigan

It starts out pretty good

MOSES, THE GREATEST LAW-GIVER, AND THE MEEKEST MAN

LONG ago in the land of Egypt there lived as slaves to the Egyptians a race of white people called the Hebrews.

Young Prince Moses had a great deal to do while he was growing to manhood. He is said to have become commander-in-chief of the Egyptian army that conquered the black and savage race living a thousand miles up the Nile.

(of course, Upper Egypt was south, and Lower Egypt was north, and the Nile flowed north, so "up the Nile" refers to farther south, that is, sub-sahara.

Rev. Hollis Read, A.M. (1802-1887), a missionary of the American Board, in his, The Hand of God In History: or Divine Providence Illustrated In The Extension and Establishment of Christianity Throughout The World (1855), wrote,

All past history is but the unraveling of God's eternal plan respecting our race. The whole course of human events is made finally to subserve this one great purpose (p. 13)....

The Hand of God is discernible in the discovery and first settlement of America.... The time had arrived when God would give enlargement to Zion. For this purpose he had reserved a large and noble continent—a land fitted, by its mighty rivers and lofty mountains, its vast prairies and inexhaustible mineral productions, to be a theatre for more extensive and grand developments of the scheme of redemption than had ever yet transpired (p. 34)....

It was at such a time that the “woman, clothed with the sun, and the moon upon her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars,” having long, and in various ways, been persecuted by the great red dragon, of “seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns on his heads,” had given to her the two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand, two hundred and three score days. And here, free, strong, lofty as the eagle, (our national banner,) she lives and breathes, and moves, stable as our everlasting hills, extensively diffused as our far-reaching rivers, and free as our mountain air (pp. 36,37).... (See Revelation 12.)

...This was the land of promise...God would give to the people of his own choice. Hither he would transplant the “vine” which he had brought out of Egypt. Here it should take root and send out its boughs unto the sea, and its branches unto the river (p. 38).... [See Genesis 49:22 and Ezekiel 17.] ...when I speak of stern principles which originated at the first settlement of this country...of the admirable institutions of our forefathers...of our high pretensions to freedom, intelligence and piety, I bear in mind that we have proved ourselves unworthy of our noble inheritance, and recreant to our good professions. But I would look beyond these clouds, which ever and anon intercept our vision, to those better things reserved for the second Israel (p. 50)....

We might here trace the agency of a series of wars which subdued many a barbarous nation and gave nationality to Germany; which kept at bay the overwhelming power of Rome, and which opened the way for the establishment of the chosen race in the British Isles (p. 583).... The Anglo-Saxons are at the present epoch of the world the chosen race through whom the great work of human progress is carried forward. They are the modern Israel, the chosen arm of the Lord for the elevating and blessing the nations of the earth. They are, as directed and used by the Almighty arm, controlling the destinies of the world (p. 682)....

...should the idea recently broached by a reverend lecturer in England (Rev. J. Wilson) prove to possess as much truth as...interest, viz.... these...Anglo-Saxons are none other than the...descendants of Abraham ...the “Ten Lost Tribes,” this will cast a new charm over the history of this extraordinary race, and confirm our already sanguine hopes that this people, whom we have called the modern Israel, shall bless the earth far more abundantly than their renowned progenitors ever did (p. 683).
